Dear Dr. Nienberg,

Some time ago I wrote to about one hundred Nobel Laureates, most of whom had supported the International Campaigns for Human Rights which I have been directing, about a purely historical project.

I said that I contemplated publishing a book about the work of Nobel Laureates and asked for whatever documentation could be spared, by those to whom I was writing. My intention was not to publish a biographical account of the usual style. I was thinking of a story about the actual work of the scientists and scholars, the emphasis being on the problems, the disappointments, the difficulties, the final success, but above all, emphasizing the role of hard work.

It was my intention to put out a work that would be inspiring to young workers. My own contact with John von Neumann demonstrated to me how much it means to witness, and work with, a great scientist or scholar.

It was not my plan to do the actual writing. That was to be done by someone competent in the area under discussion, and it would be my task to find such writers. Undoubtedly more than one book would be involved.

Of course this entire project would be unnecessary if such books had been already written or were in process of being written. I therefore asked for such information as was known about such books.

I am most grateful to many of you who have sent me material, especially many splendid photographs. I will see to it that one way or another, all the material I collect, is disposed of in a way that will be useful to future historians.

Some of you have sent me copies of the pamphlets written by you and published by the Nobel Foundation. These are most welcome. I have enquired from the Nobel Foundation and these pamphlets are available in bound volumes but rather expensive.

With respect to my request that you support the International Campaigns for Human Rights that I direct, of course I appreciate that in some sense I am intruding on your privacy. But it is a realistic fact that famous persons enjoy popular respect and Nobel Laureates are surely among the most respected persons. By speaking out against torture and oppression you strengthen enormously the action of thousands, perhaps millions, of your fellow persons. The International Campaigns have this characteristic: they are separated away from partisan political action, they pursue doggedly one issue at a time, and the Campaign sticks with the issue until the Campaign is successful.

There are 94 Nobel Laureates who support the present Campaign for all victims in Chile (to the list on page 4 of enclosed Bulletin add: Robert Schrieffer (USA)*). If your name is not in the list, it would be welcomed.

Yours sincerely,

Israel Halperin

BULLETIN of March-April 1987
Revised August 1987

The objective of this Campaign is to bring to an end all torture, abduction and oppression by agents of the Pinochet regime in Chile.

This International Campaign is directed by:

Israel Halperin, Fellow of The Royal Society of Canada
Secretary of the Canadian Committee of Scientists and Scholars
Former Vice-President of The Canadian Mathematical Society

with the help of a world-wide network of colleagues, who copy and distribute the Bulletins; to mention just one (as an example), Professor Kenichi Shiraiwa and his group, who translate the Bulletin into Japanese and distribute it throughout Japan.

We thank the many thousands of supporters in many countries whose contributions pay our only expenses (very high): printing and postage.

The work for these Campaigns, the enormous (and growing) volume of correspondence, are now impossible to handle without a secretary. We appeal to persons and organizations that value these Campaigns, to contribute funds that will pay for a secretary: payable to INTERNATIONAL CAMPAIGNS.

Persons and Organizations listed as supporting the Campaign, are not responsible for the material printed in the Bulletin: they are simply stating their strong support for the objective of the Campaign.

Our previous Campaigns have been for individual victims: Prof. J.L. Massera in Uruguay, and Dr. Anatoly Shcharansky and Dr. Yuri Orlov in the USSR. So strong has become our international support (at the end of the Orlov Campaign the number of Nobel Laureate supporters was 98) that we take on now the problem of all victims in Chile.

13 years ago, General Pinochet's men murdered the legally elected President of Chile and the General seized control of the country, control enforced with the tactics of torture, abduction, and murder of opponents or even critics. Rick Jackson of the Canadian Labor Congress (Globe and Mail, August 13, 1986) called Pinochet one of the world's bloodiest dictators.

From the Globe and Mail, Feb. 11, 1987:

A Chilean army officer gave evidence implicating military officials in the 1976 murder in Washington of a leading Pinochet opponent, former Ambassador from Chile Orlando Letelier. General Pinochet brushed off this event by calling the officer a deserter.

From Newsletter Numbers 1 and 2, 1986, Canadian Inter-Church Committee on Human Rights in Latin America:

In December, 1984, A.A.V. Morales of the Chilean Air Force Intelligence Service confirmed the existence of an 'illegal' organization whose job it was to eliminate suspected or known opponents of the regime.

The Horrible Practice of Disappeared-Missing:

Agents of the Pinochet regime, sometimes in uniform, sometimes not, seize a victim, take the victim to a secret camp (the location is changed frequently), torture the victim and then murder him or her. The Government and other authorities deny all knowledge of the event and refuse to investigate. Relatives are left in a state of unending despair and agony and the entire population is terrorized (those who complain are themselves often targets of this inhuman practice); sometimes the dead body is found, discarded.

From Amnesty International pamphlet: Chile, September, 1986:

Juan Aguirre Ballesteros went missing on 4 September 1984. On 22 October his headless and mutilated body was found in a river near Santiago.

In July, 1986, Rodrigo Rojas and Carmen Quintana Aranciaba, university students, were seized by a military control, beaten, doused with petrol and set on fire. Rojas died in hospital on 5 July, Carmen Quintana came to Canada, and is in the Hospital Dieu in Montreal, with 80% of her body burned, fighting for her life.

Pinochet commented that they had probably burned themselves accidentally.

Maximo Baex Jaramillo was beaten by the police, kicked and thrown into a water canal. Fuente Galdames was forced to walk over burning tyres in his bare feet. Luis Caucao Munoz was taken from his home, beaten and burned. One 13-year old girl was put on a police bus and beaten and kicked, later put in a barrel of very cold water. The Archbishop of Santiago protested "methods used to instill fear and insecurity in the whole community, especially the children".

The threat of arrest, abduction, torture and even death is ever present for thousands of Chileans, from church workers, human right activists, and the urban poor, to members of opposition organizations.

Chilean law contains ample provisions for the protection of the rights to life, freedom from arbitrary detention, freedom from torture and ill-treatment, and the right to justice. However, in practice, legal safeguards have been rendered ineffective by emergency laws and outright flouting of procedures.

Delegations Visiting Chile:

The National Academy of Sciences (U.S.A.) sent a delegation, including two Nobel Laureates, to Chile, March 17, 1985. The delegation reported that the Vicaria de la Solidaridad (under the protection of the Archbishop) documented, in 1983: 60 cases of people who were tortured while detained by the security forces; in 1984: 156 such cases. The most common forms of torture used in Chile, the delegates were told, are beatings on the soles of the feet, use of an electric prod, and electric torture involving strapping the victim to a metal bed, often with strips of wet cloth.

The American Committee for Human Rights, the American Psychiatric Association and the American Psychological Association sent a delegation to Chile on November 25, 1985. They reported "One case involved several school children who watched the seizure and shooting in their schoolyard of adults, including a parent and a teacher; those seized were found the next day with their throats slit".

This delegation stated that, based on their own findings, they believed that torture was used by Chile's military regime.

Harassment of Doctors in Chile:

On 11 July, 1986, Chilean police arrested and jailed Dr. Juan Luis Gonzalez and Dr. Francisco Rivas, president and secretary general, respectively, of the Chilean Medical Association. Six weeks before, Gonzalez and Rivas had accepted the American Association for the Advancement of Science Award for the efforts of the Chilean Medical Association to prevent torture in Chile and to halt the complicity of physicians in such torture.

From Frederick H. Lowy, M.D., Dean of Medicine, University of Toronto, to the American Association For The Advancement of Science, Jan. 26, 1987:

...I have learned that during the past year the President and Secretary of the Chilean Medical Association have been temporarily imprisoned and harassed Canadian academic and medical communities vigorously oppose such abuses of human rights.... Are these colleagues still being harassed?

This International Campaign-Chile will escalate publicity by regular Bulletins in several languages, including Spanish and Portuguese, and distribute these Bulletins widely in many countries, including Chile.

There are other countries where human rights are abused, but by focusing world-wide public opinion on this notorious case, we will make an effective contribution to the struggle to eliminate torture, as slavery and cannibalism were eliminated long ago from civilized society.

Who supports this International Campaign? Thousands, in many countries. We can name only a few. Included are 93 Nobel Laureates (those marked * cosigned the message to the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations printed on the next page):

Message to every member nation of the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations:

The inhuman practice of abduction, torture and oppression in Chile has been condemned by world-wide opinion. The Human Rights Commission has rebuked the Government of Chile but has failed to take effective measures to stop the practice. This failure undermines the credibility of the Commission and weakens the United Nations. The undersigned Nobel Laureates call on the Commission to take action that will be effective in stopping torture and oppression in Chile.
